

Homeless? Pregnant? Adoption is an Option

Being pregnant is likely the last thing you expected in your situation. When you don't have stable housing, you cannot always guarantee safety for yourself – so how will you take care of a baby, too?

Like any other pregnant woman, a pregnant homeless woman has choices. You can choose to parent your child, terminate your pregnancy, or place your child for adoption. However, not all of these choices may be realistically possible for you as a homeless, pregnant woman. That's why it's important that you learn as much as you can about all of your unplanned pregnancy options before moving forward; so you can choose the path that is right for you.

We are very responsive when we receive a call from a homeless pregnant woman. If you are sincere about an adoption plan, we will respond immediately and place you in safe housing, provide food while we help you assess your situation. If we all agree to go forward with an adoption plan, we provide appropriate and court approved financial assistance of housing, food, sundries, bus pass, and other necessities to make your pregnancy comfortable.

Life feels challenging right now, this doesn't have to be your forever.

We can provide housing, food, medical care, and support.
